

Barbara Corrado Pope has an undeniable passion for making history come alive. She is an historian, and founding director of the Women's and Gender Studies at the University of Oregon. She has a PhD in the Social and Intellectual History of Europe from Columbia University and has taught women's studies in places as diverse as Hungary, Tuscany, the University of New Mexico, Harvard Divinity School and Provence, where Cézanne's Quarry is set.

Born and raised in Cleveland, Ohio, Barbara resides in Eugene, Oregon, where she is actively pursuing a second career as a novelist. Cézanne's Quarry is her first novel. She has just completed The Blood of Lorraine, a second Bernard Martin mystery, which will be published in both the U.S. and Germany in the spring of 2010.
